

Senior Health Wellness Packages

What does all this mean?

Complete Physical Examination: Whether your pet is a new puppy or an aging geriatric, the Physical Examination allows the doctor to know your companion from the tip of his/her nose to the tip of his/her tail. As well, this allows external evaluation of the heart, lungs, and abdominal cavity. This is imperative to monitor for changes in health such that minor adjustments in lifestyle can be made.

Complete History: An essential part of senior care is learning more about your companion's lifestyle, diet, and habits. Many times, minor adjustments can lead to drastic improvements to quality of life.

Blood Tests

Complete Blood Count: Screens for anemia, bleeding disorders, infection, and hydration

Chem 14 blood panel: Screens basic organ function for normal values and establishes baseline values for future comparison

Chem 25 complete blood panel: Performs a more in-depth screening of organ function for normal values and can be compared to previously established baseline values

Chem 27 comprehensive blood panel: Performs a complete screening of organ function for normal values and can be compared to previously established baseline values

Electrolytes: Screens for hydration status as well as endocrine issues such as Hypoadrenocorticism

Thyroid Screen: Screens for endocrine issues such as Hypo/Hyperthyroidism that can be responsible for conditions such as skin disorders, lethargy, and even unexplained weight gain.

Blood Parasite Screen: Screens dogs for Heartworm disease as well as three tick born diseases

SDMA – a biomarker for kidney function it detects kidney disease at an earlier stage

Feline Leukemia/FIV Testing: Screens cats for two viral disease transmitted from cat to cat

Cardiopet proBNP- a blood test to help assess heart health

Fecal DX Profile: Screens for hookworm, roundworm, and whipworm antigens

EKG: Screens for basic heart function and establishes baseline values for future comparison

Urinalysis: Screens for changes in organ function, diabetes, and infection

Reflex UPC – screens urine protein: creatinine ratio to determine cause of protein in urine

Radiographs of chest & abdomen: Radiology is an essential tool allowing the doctor visualize what is going on inside of your companion to look at the heart, organs, and joints

Tonometry –Measures pressure in eye o screen for things such as Glaucoma

What about Age?

Although the senior wellness packages have been designed around age, it is important to recognize that our larger breed companion's age at an accelerated rate compared to our small breed companions. This is an important part of the physical examination interpretation and may alter the ideal package for your companion.
